FIRM'S EXPANSION PLANS COULD CREATE 300 JOBS

Flagship Skem site needs to grow, say bosses... or work could be lost to Brazil

INTERNATIONAL engineering company Trelleborg, has submitted a planning application to West Lancs Council to extend its Skelmersdale factory which it says could create up to 300 jobs.

The proposal is to erect a new building at the existing site in Stanley Way for the development of a new product line which, the company says will create more than 100 new posts initially.

And planning documents for the proposed new 2,640 square metre production building suggest that a total of 300 new jobs will result when the generated capacity is converted into sales.

Report by Henry James

Trelleborg has operations in more than 50 countries worldwide, manufacturing components used in the petrochemical, marine and offshore power generation sectors.

The proposed new Skelmersdale facility would create renewable products used for offshore power generation. According to the Planning Design and Access Statement for the proposal, the "job opportunities will be advertised within the local community positively impacting employment rates within the local area and moreover, the development will significantly impact the local economy in a positive aspect, creating sustainable employment opportunities for local residents."

Solicitors' £12.5k boost for animal rescue charity

STAFF at an Ormskirk law firm have once again proved that where there's a will there's a way to raise funds for good causes!

Latest organisation to benefit from the efforts of the team at Dickinson Parker Hill Solicitors during the annual Charity Will Month promotion is the Freshfields Animal Rescue.

The legal eagles raised a bumper £12,587 for the charity which cares for abandoned, abused and unwanted domestic and small farm animals, along with sick and injured wildlife.

That takes the total raised by the Derby Street-based company since first taking part in the scheme in 2009 to more than £116,000. Alder Hey Children's Hospital, Ormskirk Civic Hall, the Neonatal Unit at Ormskirk Hospital, Help for Heroes, Macmillan Cancer Support and Derian House Children's Hospice are other charities to have benefited.

Michael Prendergast presents the cheque to Debbie Hughes and Jane Young from Freshfields Animal Rescue with staff at Dickinson Parker Hill looking on.

Busiest yet

Charity Will Month, held every year in November, works by clients making a donation to the charity rather than paying a fee for their will.

During a busy November making wills, staff at the firm, Michael Prendergast, Leanne Reeman, Carole Connell, Peter Caffrey and Alexandra Kenyon saw more than 225 clients from Ormskirk, Southport and the wider Lancashire and Merseyside areas, ably assisted by Pauline Winrow, Dawn Joyce and Lyndsay Burns.

Partner at Dickinson Parker Hill, Michael Prendergast, said: "The Charity Will Month has proved to be very popular once again with this year being the busiest yet! We would like to thank all our clients for their support and I would also like to thank all our staff for all their hard work and professionalism in supporting the scheme.

"We are delighted to have been able to support Freshfields and raise such a large sum for them. We know how important animal welfare is to many people and we know the money will be put to good use."

Director of Freshfields Animal Rescue, Helen Stanbury, added: "We are thrilled at the generosity of the people of Ormskirk, Southport and wider area in supporting Freshfields. The money raised will make a positive difference in the lives of many animals in the local area and we would like to put on record our thanks to the staff at Dickinson Parker Hill for the work they have done."

Chris shows the window he climbed through to take pictures

Urban explorer targets former college building

AN urban explorer from Skelmersdale has taken video footage and photos of the inside of the old Skelmersdale College buildings on Southway.

Chris Tocker, right, who has a YouTube channel called 'exploring with Chris' accessed the site through a second floor window space.

The 43-year-old who lives in Digmoor, said: "I have been urban exploring for about five months. I have done this as a hobby since I lost my mother.

"The inside of the buildings have been badly damaged by fire. I think these buildings need demolishing as they are very dangerous inside.

"It's like some thing out of the apocalypse. There are copper pipes, which have been ripped out and vandalised."

According to Wikipedia, urban exploration is the 'exploration of manmade structures, usually abandoned ruins or hidden components of the manmade environment. Photography and historical interest/documentation are heavily featured in the hobby and it sometimes involves trespassing onto private property. The activity presents various risks, including both physical danger and, if done illegally and/or without permission, the possibility of arrest and punishment'.

Plot of land to be auctioned off near war memorial is cause for concern, say residents

Report by Henry James

A GROUP of residents in Up Holland are concerned that a plot of land behind the War Memorial is being auctioned off for possible development.

The plot, on the east side of Dingle Road, Up Holland, is to be auctioned on February 25 in Manchester by Pugh Auctions.

But resident, Philip Ashcroft, is against the decision and wrote the following to the Champion: "I am moved to contact you after discovering the proposed sale of land in Up-Holland off Dingle Road, which is next to the Cenotaph.

"I have discovered quite by chance that the land is up for auction on February 25 at Pugh's auctioneers.

"For years this postage stamp piece of grass has been maintained (so resident's thought) by WLDC as part of maintaining the War memorial. Alongside it runs a length of un-adopted road which council vehicles use yet over many years and despite appeals to maintain the road, resident's calls have fallen on deaf ears.

"According to the details of the sale the un-adopted road which the council claims no responsibility for is part of the sale along with the land. My question is, is this legal and is the council acting illegally in their actions, if in fact they own the land but NOT the road?

"There has been no notification of this sale anywhere by WLDC, no letters to residents, no indication as to why now and with what motive."

The land up for auction is behind the Up Holland War Memorial

The plot of land to be auctioned off

However, West Lancashire Borough Council has told the Champion it doesn't own the land or the road.

It is not known who owns the land but the Champion has asked Pugh Auctions for further information.

The plot of land has a guide price of £10,000. It is described as being close to the junction with College Road. The M58 and M6 motorways are within 1.5 miles.

The approximate site area is 747 sq m (893 yards) and interested parties who want to know more about planning opportunities on the site are being told to enquire direct with the Local Planning Authority: West Lancashire Borough Council, 52 Derby Street, Ormskirk.

Expansion plans are a 'clear demonstration of our confidence in Skelmersdale' say Trelleborg bosses

The reasons for the expansion are explained in planning documents, which state: "Due to the re-organisation of some of Trelleborg's operations combined with strong market growth within the sector, an industrial building is required to increase the capacity of operations within Trelleborg's Offshore business.

"The Stanley Way site is the group's flagship facility for buoyancy manufacture and is the organisation's first choice for development, however it is noted that if the site in Skelmersdale is prevented from such an opportunity to support the growing demand in the market, the expansion of Trelleborg's operations will defer to its Brazilian offshore manufacturing facility based in Macae."

Trelleborg has said this expansion demonstrates their "ongoing commitment" to the Stanley Way site and is a "clear demonstration" of their "confidence" in the area and its workforce.

If the proposal is approved it is expected that there will be an increase in goods vehicles by about 10%. It is also planned to increase parking capacity by about 90 vehicles.

The Design and Access statement for the proposal states that the new building is "in keeping" with the existing buildings and others within the Stanley Way Industrial estate.

And it goes on to state that the site area is of "sufficient size to easily accommodate" the scale of extension without risking over development."

Government to take over running of beleaguered rail service

End of the line for Northern

Report by Henry James

THE Government is to take over running services on the heavily criticised Northern Rail network.

Announcing the move, Transport secretary, Grant Shapps said he recognised that the rail network in the north had 'fallen far short' of delivering the service passengers need and deserve.

And therefore, he was stripping the operator, Northern Rail, of its franchise five years early. The move came as Northern was named the worst train operator in Britain.

Mr Shapps said: "Northern's network is huge and complex and some of the things which are wrong are not going to be quick or easy to put right. But I am determined that Northern passengers see real and tangible improvements across the network as soon as possible.

"Today marks the first small step towards the North taking back control of its railways and its people taking back control of their travelling lives. There will be no more leaving behind. This Government is committed to levelling-up."

A series of measures will now be introduced. These include:

- Bringing in a number electric trains from elsewhere on the network, boosting capacity for commuters into Manchester and Leeds.
- Lengthening platforms at 30 stations by the spring, in addition to the 30 already completed, to allow longer trains to run.
- All existing trains to be deep-cleaned and cleaning reviewed to ensure passengers experience the service 'they deserve from the first train to the last'.
- The Government will build on the recent agreement with ASLEF (the train drivers' trade union) and improve the reliability of Sunday services.

A Northern Rail train - the company has been heavily criticised for the number of cancellations and late-running services.

Mr Shaps said the Government recognises the scale of the challenge ahead. The Northern network serves more than 108 million passenger journeys a year on 2,800 daily services, calling at 528 stations.

He said to ensure a new vision for the railway is put in place, there will be a 'top to bottom' review of everything from operational management, to rostering patterns and, most critically, customer experience.

It will also include setting up a cross-industry task force to deliver recommendations for improving capacity and performance.

Many of Northern's problems are believed to be infrastructure-related and with that in mind, Mr Shaps wants Network Rail (who are responsible for rail infrastructure) to look at a comprehensive new 'masterplan' to review congestion around Manchester.

The Government says the decision to take back control of the network does not reflect on the staff of Northern who are described as "dedicated, hard-working and committed to their customers."

And it says the move will not affect jobs or introduce changes to fares or tickets for passengers."

Roger Bell of the Ormskirk, Preston and Southport Travellers' Association, welcomed the decision, but added a note of caution. He said: We have been waiting for this to happen but we feel that something might have to give in the reorganisation. For instance, we hope we don't lose the Southport to Piccadilly service again.

"Just taking the franchise back will not solve much in the short term. The main problem is the capacity issue through Manchester. There isn't enough space to run all the trains through Manchester.

"The new management of the nationalised services also needs to rebuild the relationship with crews and train drivers."

Transport for the North has welcomed the news. Chief executive, Barry White, said: "Our hard-pressed passengers have been calling for action for some time - as have our members. Now, at last, we have the chance of a fresh start. Action has been taken and we can move forward. This new initiative must put passengers first and provide a reliable rail service that rebuilds trust that has been lost."

Northern was operated by parent company German-owned Arriva Rail North. Chris Burchell, managing director of Arriva's UK Trains division, said: "Largely, because of external factors, the franchise plan had become undeliverable".

He claimed the company had "helped set strong foundations for future improvement on the network."

Cancer survivor who had a 'near death experience' hopes to raise awareness after BBC interview

Report by Henry James

A SKELMERSDALE woman, who is an ovarian cancer survivor, appeared on the BBC programme Inside Out North West on Monday, February 3 to talk about her experiences.

Becky Brothwood, 22, received the diagnosis after going to the doctors after she thought she was pregnant at the age of 17.

She received a scan, and doctors spotted a mass in her left ovary. She was then able to receive treatment earlier than other woman with a similar condition.

On the programme she said: "I say it was a near death experience because at one point we didn't know whether I was going to make it or not.

"I guess you just realise you're a lot luckier and I think for me what's more important now is little things like having a cup of tea, walking the dogs.

"Actually in terms of how rare it is for me to get ovarian cancer at my age, and how it was found, it was just the right place at the right time.

"The future is looking good. There is very, very little chance of it coming back.

"The treatment that I had was really, really good.

"I'd like to raise awareness of ovarian cancer just as much as other cancers.

"I feel like so many people get affected by ovarian cancer too, but unfortunately a lot of people aren't lucky with this illness."

Becky Brothwood featured on the BBC programme Inside Out North West

Her dad, Ian Brothwood was also interviewed on the programme.

He added: "If I'm having a bad day, I look back at the pictures of her being unwell and the pictures of her being well and thinking of what she went through.

"Then your day doesn't seem so bad anymore."

Youngsters held church concert for families affected by Australian wildfires

Some of the young people who took part in the concert

ST Thomas the Martyr Parish Church in Up Holland held a fundraising concert to support the families affected in Australia by the wildfires on Friday, January 31.

Led by Ian Cleverdon, children from St Thomas the Martyr CE Primary School in Up Holland and Roby Mill Primary School came together to sing a medley of pop hits before Rainhill's St Bartholomew Youth Choir performed songs from Joseph and his Amazing Technicolour Dreamcoat.

A packed church sang along to the hits and kindly donated an amazing £768 for this worthwhile cause.

Headteacher, Mr Roscoe, from St Thomas the Martyr CE Primary School commented: "All of the children were a credit to their families and sang with so much enthusiasm. I was also impressed by the singing talents of our Year 6 teacher, Mr Purcell, who lead the children on a rousing encore at the end of the night."

Merseyrail named best franchised rail operator in passenger survey

Report by Henry James

MERSEYRAIL has been named the best franchised rail operator in the country, following results from the National Rail Passenger Survey for autumn 2019.

The company achieved 91 per cent overall satisfaction among passengers in the bi-annual survey, conducted by independent consumer watchdog Transport Focus - the largest published rail passenger satisfaction survey in the world and a respected industry barometer.

Merseyrail's satisfaction rate was nine per cent higher than the national average and was deemed 'especially significant' given that surveys were carried out during a time when platform upgrade works activity was being carried out across the network preparing stations for the new fleet of trains that will begin to operate later this year.

Merseyrail managing director, Andy Heath.

Station staff were praised, with passengers found to be the most satisfied in the country by their attitude and helpfulness, while Merseyrail also topped the charts for frequency of trains and value for money.

The company is consistently adjudged one of the best performing rail operators in the country, having been named the most punctual for the last two years and achieving its best performing year ever in 2019, with 96.36 per cent of trains running on schedule.

Merseyrail managing director, Andy Heath, said: "Topping the survey for station staff attitude and helpfulness, value for money and frequency of service is especially pleasing as we know this is what our customers want from their local rail network.

"As we move forward and begin to introduce the new, state-of-the-art trains we aim to continue to improve and provide the high-quality service we have become known for."

Primary pupils learn about justice system during police museum visit

YOUNGSTERS from a Skelmersdale primary school took time out from their regular lessons to learn about the country's justice system when they visited the National Police Museum in Manchester.

The year 6 pupils from St. James' Catholic Primary in Ashurst absorbed how crime and punishment has changed since the Victorian times. They also had the opportunity to take part in a mock trial where they took on the roles of judge, jury, clerk, ushers, barristers, solicitors and witnesses.

Headteacher of the school in Ashurst Road, Angela Blacoe, said: "The day gave the children a real understanding of how the justice system works today and I think we might have some aspiring barristers in our future generation - it's a trip the children will remember for many years to come."

Strike action

EDGE Hill University will be hit with 14 days of strike action this month and in March, the University and College Union (UCU) has announced.

Action will start on Thursday, February 20 and escalate each week, culminating with a week-long walkout from Monday March, 9- Friday, March 13.

Fletchers' apprenticeship schemes will open doors for your child's future

If your child is leaving school this year, or you are unsure whether university is the right way forward, a Fletchers apprenticeship could be the key to a bright future

Incurring high levels of university debt with no guarantee of a job at the end of the process is making the next generation think twice before applying to university. Here in Southport, Fletchers have been running the first legal apprenticeship scheme of its kind, the 'Trailblazer', since 2016.

The legal 'Trailblazer' route successfully marries the traditional learning of a top legal university course with a focus on real life skills and values.

Fletchers' CEO, Ed Fletcher, says:

"Over the course of six years, the chosen apprentices will build a solid reputation inhouse and demonstrate a commitment and work ethic that trumps any qualification. And yes, you absolutely do get that same university education, it's just without incurring debt whilst becoming a fully qualified solicitor.

It is my absolute wish that we attract the brightest and the best talent Southport has. As a parent, I can honestly say how proud I am of our continued investment into the apprenticeship programme."

"As a parent, I can honestly say how proud I am of our continued investment into the apprenticeship programme."

The top 100 law firm is also proud to offer non-legal apprenticeships, too. A Fletchers non-legal apprenticeship is open to school leavers and older and provides unique opportunities to gain hands-on practical experience in transferable areas such as in finance, marketing, HR and IT.

Jon Hocker, Learning and Development Advisor says:

"Our non-legal apprenticeships have proved a huge success in bringing into the organisation talented and committed individuals who have learned and adapted quickly to become exceptional team members."

From a financial point of view, most of the cost is met by the apprenticeship levy. In cases where this isn't possible, Fletchers will pay the difference. This means no expensive university tuition fees and the freedom for your child to earn while they learn.

Fletchers Solicitors offer a range of legal and non-legal apprenticeships

We have a proven history in developing the careers of our apprentices. From taking the very first step into the legal world, to sharpening skills after leaving school, we offer a range of practical and sustainable apprenticeships aimed at kickstarting your child's career.

- Earn as you learn
- Flexible working
- Brilliant work and social opportunities
- Apprenticeship levy pays the cost
- No expensive university tuition
- Hands-on practical experience

Aged 16+? Fletchers Solicitors will open applications for apprenticeships from June 2020

Former sprint ace swaps track for bowling green

Now Brian aims to attract youngsters to the 'gentle art' of trundling

Report by Kenny Parker

WHEN former Olympic sprinter Brian Green spotted an article in the Champion appealing for new members at a local sports club he was quick out of the blocks to respond.

And although the pace at Ormskirk Bowling Club is a lot more gentle than during his days as the UK's 100m record holder, the 78-year-old soon developed a taste for trundling.

Now a year later he has been appointed press liaison officer for the Altys Lane club with the aim especially of helping to promote the sport to the younger generation.

Born in Ormskirk and resident in Skelmersdale, Brian first started running in sports days at Hudson County Primary School, Maghull and later joined the Liverpool Pembroke and St Helens-based Pilkington Harriers clubs.

At just 5ft 5ins, Brian was on the short side for a sprinter and something of a late developer, but he went on to become the national AAAs champion at 100m, as well as claiming the British record with a time of 10.1 seconds.

He also represented England at three successive Commonwealth Games (1970, 1974 and 1978), winning a bronze medal as a member of the 4 x 100m relay squad in the 1970 event.

And he was selected for the Great Britain team at the Munich Olympics in 1972, competing in the 100m, 200m and 4 x 100m relay and reaching the semi-finals in both 100m events.

● Above: Brian with his trophies after winning all the major domestic sprint championships in 1972.
● Right: Green on the green...Brian at Ormskirk Bowling Club.

Later he was crowned European Masters Champion in Strasbourg in 1981 and was a bronze medallist in the World Masters Championships in 1982

But it wasn't just on the track that Brian excelled - he also competed in the World Bobsleigh Championships in both four-man and two-man teams and for five years played hockey for Ormskirk and Lancashire!

Turning his hand to coaching, he qualified as national athletics coach and also became the first dedicated fitness trainer at St Helens Rugby League club.

Away from sport meanwhile, Brian was chosen as a 'model' for the cover of the Frankie Goes to Hollywood chart-topping 1984 hit record Relax!

For the last 10 years of his working life he ran his own podiatry practice but now requires dialysis three times a week for a kidney condition and is hoping for a transplant soon.

He said: "After retirement, I took up hill walking but missed competitive sport. When I read the piece in the Champion by Ormskirk Bowling Club coach Ian Gill inviting people to try the game, I decided to give it a go." And although it's world away from his days burning up the track, Brian was immediately hooked.

"Obviously there's a huge difference between 100metres, which is all about strength and power, and bowls which is a game of gentle exercise but requiring a very high skill. But bowls is a game for all ages and genders and I would particularly encourage youngsters to take part in one of our beginners events to be arranged in the spring."

The triumphant St Richard's Primary School swimming team.

St Richard's are splash hits at town swimming gala

SUPER swimmers from St Richard's Catholic Primary are celebrating after triumphing in the town's Schools Swimming Gala for the second time in three years.

Superb performances from all the team members saw everyone progress from their respective heats to claim a place in their finals of the event at the Wigan Life Centre.

In the 50m boys freestyle final, Connor claimed a well-earned fourth place while Emily took third position in the girls race to get the night off to a good start.

Following that opening success, Dan claimed second in the boys breaststroke with Ava matching that effort in the girls event.

The momentum continued into the freestyle finals with Noah claiming fifth place in a strong boys event, while sister Lola claimed gold with a comfortable performance in the girls event.

And the team claimed another medal in the backstroke finals with Olivia earning silver, while Charlie just missed out on a bronze.

The night finished with the relays which again saw success for both St Richard's teams.

The boys battled well to keep pace with the front two before having to settle for a well-earned bronze, but the girls produced an outstanding performance, dominating their rivals to win comfortably and claim a well-deserved gold medal.

And the efforts and hard work of all the squad were rewarded as they emerged as overall winners to claim the top prize.

Hospital trust seeks volunteer gardeners

IF you love gardening and have a little spare time on your hands to donate to a good cause, Southport and Ormskirk Hospital NHS Trust want to hear from you.

The trust is seeking green-fingered volunteers to spend a few hours each week at either Ormskirk or Southport hospital.

Helpers are needed, mostly in spring and summer, to help care for the Baby Garden memorial area and the staff Education Centre garden at the Ormskirk site and also at Southport's Garden of Reflection.

The trust expects to recruit more than one person to cover all the work which will not involve any heavy lifting, mowing or tree surgery.

Jobs the volunteers will be asked to tackle will include weeding, deadheading, planting and pruning; clearing pathways and keeping garden areas tidy; and watering during dry spells

Anyone who would like to give a few hours is asked to contact volunteer services manager, Irene Gardner either by email at irenegardner@nhs.net or by ringing 01704 704796.

Trust chief executive, Trish Armstrong, said: "Volunteering is an enriching experience for all involved.

"Many vitally important roles here at the trust - from staffing the welcome desk to bringing therapy dogs to visit patients and staff - are carried out by those kind enough to give their time for free. We welcome all local people who want to share their unique talents with our trust."

Top cop to give public lecture at Edge Hill on politics and policing

ONE of the country's senior police officers will deliver a public lecture, discussing the relationship between politics and policing at Edge Hill University tomorrow (Thursday, February 6).

Chief Constable of Merseyside Andy Cooke.

Chief Constable of Merseyside, Andy Cooke, who is also the national policing lead for crime and a holder of the Queen's police Medal, will debate whether the role of police and crime commissioners undermines one of the 'Peelian' principles of policing that chief constables should be operationally independent of policing and political influences in decision-making.

He said: "I'm delighted to be returning to the impressive facilities and warm welcome of Edge Hill for this second annual lecture.

"The relationships and accountability between all chief constables and police & crime commissioners should be subject to debate and scrutiny, so this is a great opportunity to discuss it further."

Andy's arguments will be led by his extensive policing experience. His policing career has spanned two police forces, seeing him serve as a detective at every rank, with significant experience in leading investigations into murder, corruption and covert operations before his appointment as Chief Constable of Merseyside Police in 2016.

Entitled 'Do policing and politics make happy bedfellows? Or is operational independence - a fundamental principle of British policing - being eroded?' the event is free and open to the public.

It will be held in the university's Law and Psychology building from 5.30pm.

To register for a free place visit www.eventbrite.com/e/annual-lecture-chief-constable-andy-cooke-merseyside-tickets-90188467133.

TV cameras to be allowed in Crown Courts

TELEVISION cameras will be allowed to film in Crown Courts for the first time since being banned 1925.

A new law will allow cameras to record judges' sentencing remarks in serious high-profile criminal cases, such as murder, sexual offences and terrorism.

However, whole trials will not be televised. The judge alone will be seen on camera as he or she delivers their sentencing remarks, so that victims, witnesses, jurors, lawyers or the convicted defendant will not be filmed.

It is expected the legislation should take around three months to progress through Parliament and the first broadcasts could take place in late spring or early summer.

Motorists urged to allow extra journey time in bad weather

DRIVERS are being urged to allow extra time for their journeys in adverse weather conditions after Lancashire County Council's gritting teams were called into action last week.

After the Met Office issued a yellow warning for ice in the region last Monday, (January 27) the authority's highways teams treated all the main gritting routes.

County Councillor Keith Iddon, cabinet member for highways and transport, said: "Our gritting teams will be treating the priority routes, which amount to around a third of all roads in the county. However we can't grit every road, as this isn't practical, which is why people must always drive according to the conditions.

"The gritting teams will be doing their best to keep the roads moving, but everyone needs to do their bit to prepare and make sure they can manage when we get snow and ice. That could be simply by doing some basic checks on your vehicle or calling in on vulnerable relatives and neighbours to see if they're okay in case they struggle to get out in icy weather.

"I'd also ask people to please use grit bins responsibly. The bins are in locations where there is a particular hazard, and the grit is there to be used on the roads and pavements. Please don't take it for use on your driveway or paths around the home."

Council decision to withdraw market stalls service raises safety concerns

I AM writing to voice my concern at the decision to withdraw the stall hire and erection service provided by the council at the Thursday and Saturday markets in Ormskirk.

The stalls which are currently provided are robust enough to withstand the elements. The ones which a few stall holders bring to the market as an alternative are in many cases not fit for purpose and in high winds could easily be blown over and pose a danger to shoppers.

Currently these structures are often in close proximity to and attached to, the council stalls, which provide a safe anchor point. If the council-provided stalls are withdrawn from April, as proposed, I am concerned that this will present a health and safety risk as described above.

Furthermore, who is going to ensure/check that the stalls erected, post-April, are safe for members of the public to visit?

I also fear that the withdrawal of the council service will result in fewer stall holders coming to the market. Having to transport, erect and deconstruct their own stalls will add significant time to their day and for some it may not be practical or desirable and cause them to look elsewhere to take their business.

From a purely aesthetic perspective, I favour the uniformity and traditional look of the council stalls. The way they are placed allows a free flow of people through and around the market. I dread to think what the market will look like as stall holders are enforced to bring in their own constructions of various shapes, sizes and designs.

Ormskirk Market has been held in the town centre for 100s of years and continues to be an attraction to shoppers for miles around to the benefit of the local shops, bars, cafes and thus the economy.

As our elected representatives the council should be looking at ways of ensuring the market's continued long-term prosperity by finding innovative ways of attracting more people to the town, rather than proposing these short-sighted, short-term, cost-cutting measures, which may have irreversible consequences.

I have contacted the councillors responsible with the following questions. How and why was this proposal made? What alternatives were considered? How was the consultation process conducted?

So far I have not received a reply.

M. P., by email.

It seems like the growth of university is supported to detriment of everything else

I WAS most impressed by the front page story (January 22) of the efforts being made by Mr Graham Gilbert to save our traditional Thursday and Saturday markets which I believe have been going since about 1290-ish.

Sadly, I think Mr Gilbert is going to end up being disappointed, because it seems to me, that despite the trend in sourcing local produce from our rich farmland, our pathetic councillors are determined to support the growth of Edge Hill University to the detriment of everything else.

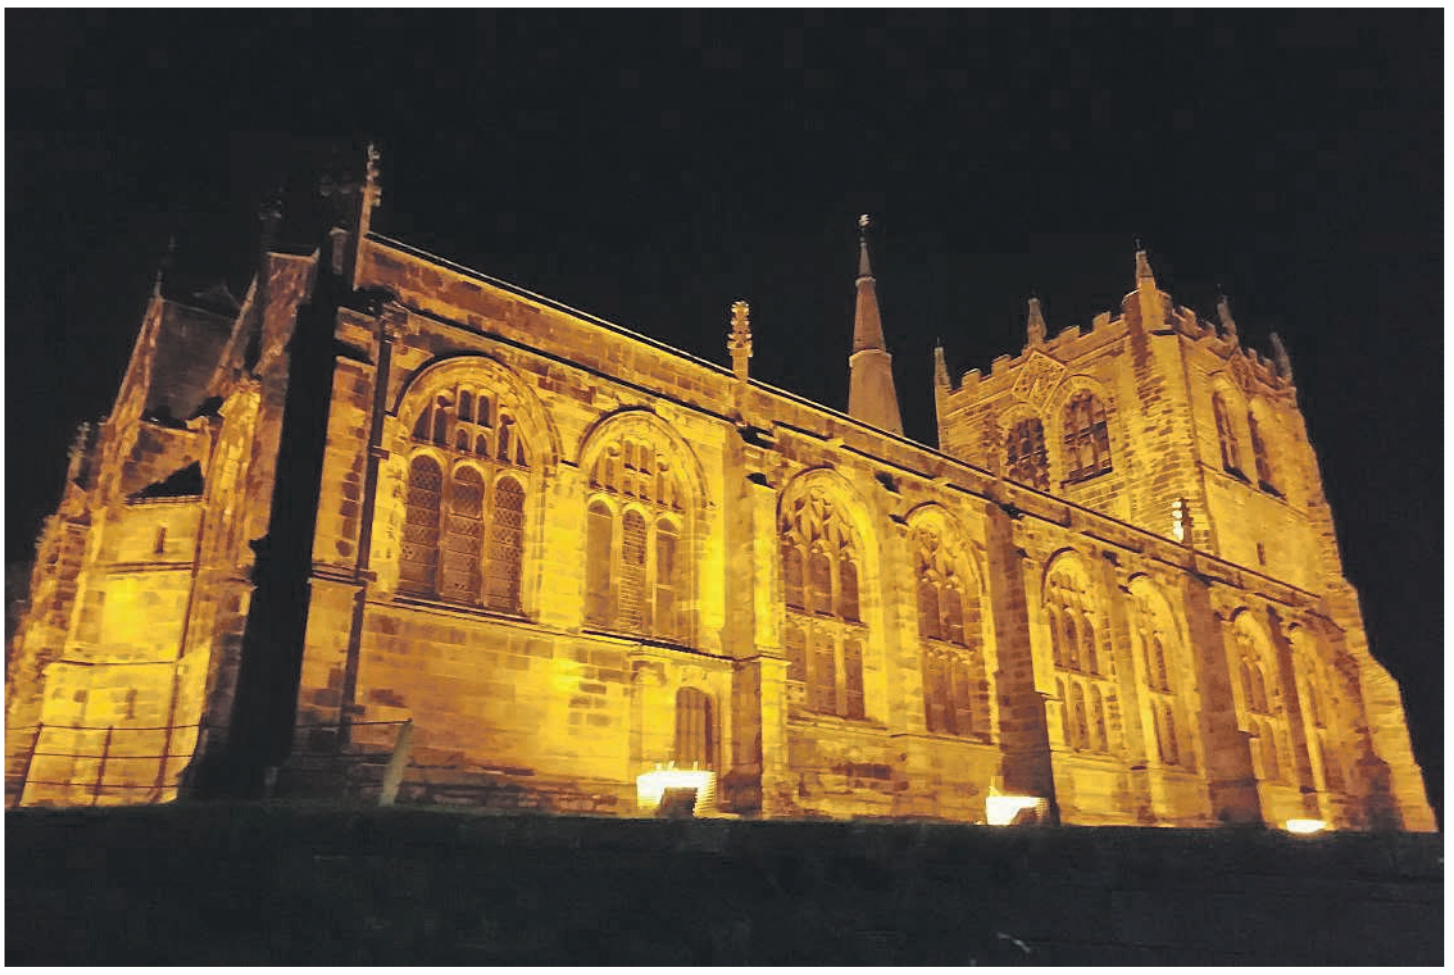
I have lived in Ormskirk since the early 1990s and have seen a marked decline over the years, particularly it seems in the last five years or so.

I seem to recall that several years ago, there were plans to upgrade the market stalls and change the layout to make it more user-friendly. What happened to that?

So perhaps its time to make a change to the signage that drivers see as they approach the town from 'Ormskirk Historic Market Town' to the more truthful 'Ormskirk home of Edge Hill University'.

Derek Andrews, by email.

PICTURE of the week



READER Elizabeth Prescot submitted this photo and writes: "I was born in Ormskirk 56 years ago and love that there are still sights that make me go 'wow' just by walking a different way or approaching from a different direction.
"We are so lucky to have such historic and majestic buildings in Ormskirk."
If you would like to submit a photo to be considered for the Champion's Picture of the Week slot, you can simply email it to us, as a J-peg attachment, to editorial@champnews.com. Please remember to include your name and the area where you live, along with brief caption details to accompany your photograph.
Although we are unable to publish all photos submitted for favour of publication, we do very much appreciate your contributions

Some common sense needed to see what's at stake for market

WITH regards to Martin Pagett's letter ('Loss of market stalls is a disaster for town' January 15) I have lived in Ormskirk over 50 years and worked many years in the town, always seeing how the market on Thursdays and Saturdays, draws so many people in regardless of the weather.

It is bad enough that so many shops have closed, which I think is due to high rents and shopping online.

As for West Lancs Council saying that erecting the stalls and later removing them costs £84,000 per year, wait and see what the overall loss of the market will cost! And the offer of free rent to stall holders from January to March, a time when they take holidays, just seems like a bribe.

I was glad to see the front page story (January 22) showing businessman Graham Gilbert making so much effort to get signatures for his petition against the council's decision. No doubt the council will say they are not stopping the market, but that is what they might as well do.

Hopefully though with some common sense they will realise what is at stake for Ormskirk as a market town.

Mrs Ida Craven, Aughton.

Thanks to a true gent

I WOULD like to thank the gentleman, who I assume is an Ormskirk resident, who came to my daughter's aid on Wednesday, January 22.

She suffered a ruptured disc in her back whilst at work and had to make her way home on Merseyrail.

After an extremely painful walk from her office to Moorfields station she was quite distressed by the time she reached the platform. The gentleman concerned asked her if there was a problem and, if so, could he help?

She had placed her bag on the floor and couldn't even bend to pick it up. He carried the bag for her and assisted her on to the train to Ormskirk.

Because of her back she had to stand all the way to Town Green and the gentleman sat close by and kept an eye on her.

At Town Green he again carried the bag and assisted her down from the train on to the platform where my wife and I were waiting.

We are extremely grateful to him. In this ridiculous age of PC and #Metoo, it is a pleasure to encounter a person who uses common sense and consideration. Sadly, I fear many people would have walked by!

B. E. Banks, Aughton.

Give us back our street cleaner - and pride in our town

I HAVE lived in Skelmersdale for many years and we had a brilliant street cleaner in our area of Birch Green, never seeing any rubbish which lazy people drop.

But now he has been moved the streets are full of rubbish again.

When something works why change the system?

Come on West Lancs Council give us back our pride in our town.

Ginette Brun,
Inskip, Skelmersdale.

Footpath upgrade is good news - but beware of bus station paving!

I'M pleased to see an upgrade of the footpath/cycleway from the railway to the bus station - but what happens to the pedestrians/cyclists when they reach the atrocious paving on the bus station?

If they don't trip or have a puncture they will be very fortunate!

Regular bus station user, details supplied.

‘Outstanding’ surgeons scoop national awards

TWO orthopaedic surgeons at the Southport and Ormskirk Hospital NHS Trust have won national awards.

Krushroo Suraliwala and Imran Ullah were named Best Musculoskeletal Trauma Principal Investigator and Best Musculoskeletal Trauma Trainee Principal Investigator, respectively, in the National Institute for Health Research Network Awards.

They were presented with their awards at a ceremony at Newcastle.

The research was part of a multi-centre project with the potential to alter national clinical guidelines. Professor Matthew Costa, national specialty lead for trauma and emergency care, described the two surgeons’ work as “outstanding in a very strong field of applicants.”

Mr Suraliwala said Anna Morris, musculo-skeletal research practitioner, and her research team gave invaluable input to the Orthopaedic department in the study.

Veterans blast Legion's 'terrible decision' to close Byng House

Report by Danielle Thompson

VETERANS have reacted with dismay to the news that the Royal British Legion is to close Byng House in Southport.

The Champion revealed last week that the centre, which offers respite breaks to forces veterans and their families, is to cease operating and the building put up for sale.

Byng House was opened 10 years ago and has been a destination for members of the armed forces community who are lonely, have combat stress, are in hard times financially, or even terminally ill.

The move to close Byng House has led to widespread anger among veterans.

Chairman of the Southport branch of the Legion, Colin Hughes, told the Champion: "We are losing a valuable resource with the closure of Byng House.

"The RBL have been deliberating on it for a long time as to whether the centre is viable or not. I have myself suggested other uses for the building including tightening the criteria and only taking those who are more vulnerable on referrals, or even charging a reduced rate for holidays, but these suggestions made were deemed not viable.

"All four centres run by the Legion will close saving the organisation £5million. This will be redirected into services.

"I am now concerned that people will not be giving funds to the Poppy Appeal in November as a gesture against the closure of Byng House but, really, the only people who will suffer as a result of this would be veterans across the UK.I think that veterans who need help in Southport in the future will have to go to Southport Soup Kitchen or the Salvation Army, so we need to make sure they get the support that they need.

Byng House in Southport.

'Disgusting'

"There will be no tea and coffee sessions for veterans on Tuesday afternoons because of this decision so we are looking for another organisation to offer us a venue so we can continue to host them."

Roland Sutton, 64, a veteran who served for 46 years with the Royal Artillery and the Royal Logistics Corps, said: "It's absolutely disgusting that they have closed Byng House - it's terrible news. They are forcing veterans back into social isolation.

"They (Legion) have taken away something so positive - the banter and feeling here is not like something that anyone would be able to understand. It's taking something away that was a specialist service for those with PTSD - some won't be able to go on holiday now at all. It could have been modernised without being culled, as it's such a brilliant service and the staff were fantastic. Veterans from across the country came here."

Keith Mitchell, chairman of the Mawdesley branch of the RBL, added: "As a member of the Royal British Legion for 30 years, I'm appalled that the trustees of the Legion have closed Byng House with immediate effect.

"To add insult to injury, they have decided to sell the buildings instead of keeping them as an asset using them as care homes, as the RBL don't have any in the North.

"People give and donate to the Legion for the welfare benefit of the Armed Service community and their dependents, not financial stockpiling."

Pupils team up with artist to create 'tree of values'

TALENTED pupils at a West Lancs primary school teamed up with a professional artist to create a colourful mural in the form of a six-foot 'tree' representing their school's values.

With financial support from local house builders and fundraising efforts by the school community, youngsters at Banks St Stephen's CE Primary worked with an artist from Lancashire company Primart Installations to design and paint the colourful, three dimensional 'Tree of Values' in the school hall.

Set against a backdrop of the local rural landscape painted by pupils, the 'tree' - complete with multi-coloured 'leaves' - was created as a permanent reminder of the school's aims to promote friendship, love, hope, thankfulness, compassion and helpfulness.

Seddon Homes, who have built a new housing development at neighbouring Hawtree Grove, gave £1,000 to the project, while contributions also came from the sale of toast at playtimes and a donation by the Friends of St Stephen's.

Deputy head teacher at the school in Greaves Hall Avenue, Michelle Mussell, said: "Our pupils are so proud that they all had a hand in making the 'tree'for the school. It's become very much a part of our school life. "

Seddon Homes' head of sales & marketing, Suzanne Hallworth, added: "We're delighted to have been able to help make the project possible, The hard work and creativity involved, from the initial design to the completed tree, is amazing. Every member of the school should be proud to be part of such a unique achievement."

Co-op store refused to let pregnant woman buy heartburn medication

30-year-old turned away because she couldn't prove she was over 25!

Report by Kenny Parker

THE Co-op has apologised after a 30-year-old pregnant woman was refused heartburn medication at one of its stores because she couldn't prove she was over 25 - even though she had bought the same product there every other day for nearly three months!

Hayley Chantler, who was 38 weeks pregnant at the time, was left "upset and distressed" when she was turned away from the store in Town Green Lane, Aughton.

Her dad, Colin Tivey, told the Champion: "Hayley suffers from intense heartburn and has been buying packs of Gavison from the Co-op in Aughton every other day for the last 10 to 15 weeks.

"If she doesn't take the medication the heartburn gets so bad sometimes that she is physically sick.

"She felt extremely unwell and was pleading with the store assistant and the manager to let her buy the Gaviscon but in the end she left the shop really upset and distressed.

"After walking back home she got in her car and drove to a pharmacy where they served her with Gaviscon straight away.

"Hayley has said that because of the way she was treated she will never use the Co-op again."

A spokesperson for Co-op said: "We have a duty to age-restrict some products and medicines, that can potentially cause harm. Our colleagues receive extensive training in carrying out Challenge 25 checks, but sometimes err on the side of caution, as is the case in this instance. We apologise for any upset which has been caused."

Double donation boost for hospice

QUEENSCOURT Hospice, which receives less than a quarter of its funding from the NHS, has been given a double boost in the shape of donations of £817 and £800 respectively.

Members of the Southport and Ormskirk Law Society presented a cheque for £817, the proceeds of their annual dinner held at the Vincent Hotel in Southport.

Current president of the society, Gill Dowling, was keen to use the opportunity to raise funds for the hospice in Kew that provides support for patients in West Lancs, Southport and Formby with serious illnesses.

Gill, head of property at Brighouses Solicitors in Southport, said: "I was inspired by my 12-year-old son Zack who has raised £2,000 for the hospice through a series of fundraisers. My mum also volunteers at the hospice and has organised very successful fundraising.

"The dinner was supported by many local firms and we asked those attending to make a donation. It proved a huge success with amazing generosity shown to raise an incredible £817.70."

Meanwhile, Rufford pensioner Ron Snape donated £800 in memory of his late wife, Pauline who passed away at the age of 79 in August 2018 following a five-year battle with Parkinson's disease.

Ron has previously raised funds for Parkinson's UK and the North West Air Ambulance in memory of Pauline.

Shortly before she was diagnosed with Parkinson's, Pauline suffered a broken neck after a fall down stairs and was airlifted to hospital in Liverpool by the North West Air Ambulance.

Aisling Halligan-Giles from Queenscourt Hospice said: "One of our supporters, Ron Snape, raised an amazing £800 in memory of his late wife, Pauline. He held several fundraising events, including a strawberry tea and coffee mornings, alongside donations from family and friends."

● Above: Southport and Ormskirk Law Society president Gill Dowling (left) presents the cheque for £817.70 to Judith Stewart, fundraising manager at Queenscourt Hospice.

If it's ok to jet to Spain then please allow me time on my old diesel boat

HERE we are, very nearly two months after the shortest day, post-Brexit and Liverpool FC doing very nicely thank-you without my help - so what to talk about?

Well, personally I suppose the next big event in my calender must be my first 2020 Norfolk Broads holiday on my lovely old motor cruiser Manxman. Particularly since the way the climate change arguments are going I have no idea for how long I will be able to do this as the old girl relies on her 2.2 litre BMC diesel engine (which first saw service in an FX3 taxi).

Although I honestly don't see how banning this old thumper would make a ha'pence worth of difference to our climate. My few annual weeks, in which the engine is running only for a fraction of the time, must, I think, compare pretty favourably with a jet flight to Spain, let alone the Caribbean. Anyhow, I intend to enjoy my wee boat as much as I can, while I can.

Actually, this first cruise of the year is always a bit fraught until it actually gets under way as Manxman will have been standing in her wet-shed for six months or so. A wet-shed is the best place for a wooden boat to be as she is in the water (which stops the hull drying out and leaking like the proverbial) but undercover (which protects against the worst frost and keeps the varnish-work out of weather).

But would you be confident your car would start if you had left it standing in a just about as damp an environment as you can get for six months? And it's not just getting the motor running that could (should?) be problematical, it's everything else electrical too -from the lights to the TV.

And yet, each year I clamber aboard clutching the ignition key and very nearly every time in the 35 years I have owned the boat, after a little churning she bursts into healthy, throbbing life!

I must admit last 'boating season' I became aware of the very latest electric cruisers (though most at the moment are really hybrids) not because of the noise they make, but the lack of it. I reckon it would take a bit of getting used to. For an old hand like me the sound of a healthy diesel is somehow comforting, but these new creations are certainly most impressive. Although I wonder just how somebody like myself could reasonably buy one second-hand, as my late brother George and I did with Manxman all those years ago.

These behemoths of the electric age carry a battery of batteries, if you see what I mean. Manxman has but three (two for 'domestic' use and the other to start her. I have no idea how many these hybrids carry, but just think of the expense when you need to replace say, a dozen high-quality batteries all in one go. The mind boggles.

Still, sufficient unto the day is the evil there of (as I now know it says in the Bible, though I still think Shakespeare 'borrowed' it).

While I can I intend thoroughly to enjoy Manxman. With just a little bit of luck we two can get old together (at 55 years, she is rapidly catching up). And I am truly sorry if our pollution offends anybody. After all, I no longer have a car so in a very few years all my travel (be it bus or train) should be pollution-free so surely I can be allowed just a little latitude for a few weeks each year?

And whilst on my boating holiday, for just four or five hours of diesel engine running (at a very low speed at that) all the rest of my time during those weeks is spent on Shank's pony - so I never, ever, contribute to the amount of traffic that these days seems to require miles of very expensive motorway building each year.

So, come on, be fair, please let me keep my poor old boat.

Public consultation launched on new review system for supported housing

PEOPLE are being invited to share their views about a proposed new way of reviewing supported housing across Lancashire in an eight-week online consultation running until Wednesday, March 25.

Tenants, their families, care providers and the public can have their say on the proposed new ways of working, which Lancashire County Council say will help maximise occupancy in supported housing.

Supported housing schemes are delivered by housing providers, and the care and support to tenants is commissioned by the county council. They aim to ensure people with disabilities can live as independently as possible in the community.

Most people who live in supported housing share a house and the communal facilities. There is usually 24-hour support from care workers.

There are currently 160 properties with one or more vacancies, out of a total of 700 supported housing schemes in the county. There are around 225 vacancies in total.

When there are one or more long-term vacancies in supported housing schemes, it can cause problems for other residents who may feel more isolated and could have to pay more for the service or household bills.

Vacancies also put a financial burden on the county council, who subsidise the remaining shared services when a vacancy arises.

County Councillor Graham Gooch, the council's cabinet member for adult services, said: "Vacancies in supported housing are a major issue in Lancashire. We work very closely with housing providers to ensure vacancies are filled as quickly as possible once they arise and this good work will continue.

Priority

"However, there are some schemes with long-term vacancies with little or no hope that they will be filled, because of the way the services operate. These proposals are about reducing properties that are no longer viable because of ongoing vacancies, where there is little or no chance that they will ever be filled.

"There are some properties where there have been vacancies for years and this situation cannot continue. The county council cannot continue to pay for housing that is not being used.

"We have set out criteria that will be used to make decisions about whether the county council will continue to commission certain tenancies. However, our priority is to ensure that people are happy with where they live, that they are safe, settled and well in their supported accommodation, and that all their rights are respected.

"We'd like people to share their views on our proposal via our website."

Government pledges £9.9m to help get rough sleepers off region's streets

ALMOST £10million will be spent on helping to get the region's rough sleepers off the streets.

Housing Secretary, Robert Jenrick has announced that councils across the North West will share £9.9m of Rough Sleeping Initiative funding to help the homeless into safe accommodation.

The third year of the scheme will be used by local authorities, charities and other organisations to create up to 704 bed spaces and employ 230 support staff across the region - and aims to meet the commitment of ending rough sleeping by the end of this parliament. It's claimed that analysis shows that numbers are 32% lower than they would be if the programme didn't exist.

This could mean a roof over their head, access to specialist mental health or addiction services, or advice on how to secure a home in the long term.

Homelessness Minister, Luke Hall, said: "No-one should have to face a night on the street and we have a moral duty to support those who most need helpt. It's encouraging to see more people getting the support they need, but there is always more to do.

Luke Hall, Minister for Homelessness.

"There are people all over the North West working tirelessly to improve the lives of the most vulnerable in our society. Our Rough Sleeping Initiative is proving to be successful, and this funding will mean this vital work can be continued as we set out to end rough sleeping once and for all."

The funding will be used by councils to do the following:

- Create street-based services including outreach teams who will locate and support rough sleepers directly on the streets and offer them access to services
- Establish first stage accommodation such as hostels, Somewhere Safe to Stay hubs and emergency access beds which provide warm and dry shelter, rapid assessment, and support to people who are already - or at risk of - sleeping rough
- Set up housing support and housing-led solutions providing stable, affordable accommodation and intensive wrap-around support to help people who are sleeping rough recover from complex issues and sustain their tenancies
- Introduce specialist support workers including Rough Sleeping co-ordinators, navigators and specialist health and care staff.

The Rough Sleeping Initiative was launched in 2018 to ensure local areas were being given the boost they needed to provide vital services for those living on the streets. Overall the funding will help to create up to 5,000 bed spaces and employ 2,500 staff, giving people access to a roof over their head when they need it most as well as the help they need to recover from a life on the streets.

Martin Mere news

Puddle ducks and puddle jumping

As Martin Mere gears up for the annual North West Puddle Jumping Championships, it is not just people that splash about in puddles during the winter. Our nature reserve plays host to a number of ducks that, collectively, are known as "puddle ducks".

Ducks are split into two main groups: diving ducks, which dive underwater to find food, and dabbling, or puddle, ducks which, as their name suggests, dabble around in shallow water, and even large puddles, scooping up food. Some dabblers, such as pintail and teal, will "upend" in shallow water to reach vegetation below the surface, leaving us to see a nice view of their bottoms.

Others, such as shovelers, with their specially adapted beak, will shovel food up by skimming the surface of the water. Another group of puddle ducks, including shelduck and wigeon, will actually spend more time grazing on land than dabbling and should possibly be called lawnmower ducks.

February is a fantastic time to see a variety of puddle ducks at Martin Mere because the male birds are in their brightest plumage, getting ready to attract mates for the upcoming breeding season. Many of them will also come close to the hides, particularly the Discovery Hide, at the daily Swan Feed.

Most of the dabbling ducks seen at Martin Mere during the winter have migrated to us from eastern and northern Europe to escape the cold winter climate. Species such as teal, pintail and wigeon may have flown over 2000 miles to be with us, whereas many shoveler and gadwall may have come from other parts of the UK.

The most common and recognisable dabbling duck is the mallard and, although many mallard will be local birds, they will be joined in winter by others from further afield; it doesn't take long in the mallard world for word to get round that there's free seed being dished out at Martin Mere!

By Easter, many of these dabblers will start to leave for their breeding grounds. Some will fly back to Europe, while a few gadwall, teal, shoveler and mallard will find quiet places on our nature reserve to breed. The mere will soon become a much quieter place, so catch these beautiful birds while they are still here.

Visit the web site www.wwt.org.uk/martinmere to find out what's on the reserve at the moment as well as all the upcoming events

Young pianist to perform as part of Douglas Music's concert season

AGED just 22, pianist Can Çakmur delights concert audiences with his engaging performances, and on Saturday, February 22 he will visit Parbold to perform in Douglas Music's concert season.

The international prize winner recently made his debut with the Tokyo Symphony Orchestra, and following his recital in Parbold he will perform with the Royal Scottish National Orchestra in March.

Tickets for Parbold Douglas Music's concert are available from www.parbolddouglasmusic.org.

It will be a particular pleasure to hear Can Çakmur play Parbold Douglas Music's superb Steinway grand piano.

One of the highlights of the evening will be music by Beethoven, himself a virtuoso pianist, who was frequently frustrated by the limitations of pianos in his time. His Sonata in E major and An die Ferne Geliebte, a Beethoven song cycle reworked for the piano by Franz Liszt, will be heard to their best advantage on the piano.

Previously it belonged to the Barbican Hall, London where it was played by the world's greatest pianists.

Also on the programme are pieces by the German composer Sven Daigger from his Vier Phasen für Klavier, and two works by the Romantic composer Robert Schumann. Schumann's Piano Sonata No.2, a favourite among concert audiences for its showmanship and virtuosity, can be heard alongside his emotionally charged Gesänge der Frühe.

Can Çakmur is the first prize winner of two internationally prestigious competitions, the Scottish International Piano Competition and the Hamamatsu International Piano Competition in Japan.

Can Çakmur

Noriko Ogawa, the international pianist, friend of Parbold Douglas Music and senior judge of the Hamamatsu Competition, requested this concert as part of Can's winner's prize.

Since the competition he has performed in concert halls including Glasgow Concert Hall, Eindhoven Muziekgebouw, Lithuanian Philharmonic Hall, ACT City Hamamatsu as well as the most important concert halls in his homeland, Turkey.

Tickets for the concert are £18 for adults and £5 for young persons and students.

To book tickets visit www.parbolddouglasmusic.org /email tickets@parbolddouglasmusic.org / telephone 01257 498452 (answerphone).

Review by Henry James

CURTAINS ticks three boxes - it is a musical, a comedy and also a murder mystery.

The show was at the Liverpool Empire last week.

There was an extensive cast in this touring production, which played in London's West End during Christmas.

It starred Jason Manford as Lieutenant Frank Cioffi who was called on to investigate the murder of Jessica Cranshaw (Nia Jermin), who was the star of new musical Robin Hood, which is Broadway bound.

Manford proved he is a real all-rounder in this show. He not only provided comedy, he also sung and danced as well.

Ore Oduba (Aaron Fox), a Strictly Come Dancing winner, also stood out in the show. He and Georgia Hendricks (Carley Stenson) were a divorced songwriting team.

Everyone was suspected of committing the murder and there was quite a complex subplot to follow.

The music and lyrics are from Kander and Ebb and the score has a mix of amusing and more serious songs. The nine piece band was well-led by the musical director Alex Beetschen. Although the score didn't hit the heights of Kander and Ebb's more famous shows, such as Cabaret and Chicago.

There were some noteworthy dance scenes in Curtains. Alan Burkitt as Bobby Pepper, the male star of the show within the show, was allowed to show off his dancing skills.

The production entertained throughout, with many twists and turns. The show could benefit with losing 10 minutes of its running time though.

This was a good musical with its star names pulling out all the stops. 7/10

Woman in Black was an 'interesting night out' at theatre

Review by Peter Rimmer

The Woman in Black
Liverpool Playhouse

ONE of the most well-known and longest-running West End shows came to Liverpool last week.

The Woman in Black, a spooky adaptation of Susan Hill's well known novel adapted by Stephen Mallatratt, was brought to life at the Playhouse, this being a great venue for this type of play.

Many readers will know the story from the 2012 film version starring Daniel Radcliffe.

The play has been running for more than 25 years in London and all around the world.

Set in a theatre a hundred years ago, the play tells the terrifying ghost story with the mysterious Woman in Black making the odd appearance to great effect.

This is a two-handed play with Robert Goodale as Arthur Kipps, whose story is brought to life by Daniel Easton as the Actor. Both men play over a dozen roles including Mr Bentley, Sam Daily, Mr Jerome and Keckwick who brings the play to life telling the story of a lawyer obsessed with a curse that he believes has been cast over him and his family by the Woman in Black.

Swaying from farce to drama the play moves swiftly along using great sound effects and simple staging, such as a see through backcloth to change scenes from children's bedroom to fog covered cemetery.

The lawyer has to sort out the Drablow family estate on the lonely Eel Marsh House, of course, miles from anywhere. Rising tides and a falling down house make it a rather unsettling encounter. With screaming and other sound effects coming from all over the theatre and plenty of fog it was very atmospheric.

A sudden black out on stage for several minutes, was at first thought to be part of the story but it was in fact no more than a technical fault. However it didn't distract from the action and the show continued apace.

There was a full house with plenty of younger theatre goers who entered into the spirit of the play.

An interesting night out and well worth seeing. The Woman in Black is on a nationwide tour.

8/10 Spooky

Invitation to be in new show

CALLING all divas, drama queens and dancers! Would you like to be part of the cast of Southport Spotlights Musical Theatre Society's next show?

After their latest fabulous production of Sunset Boulevard, they will be holding an introductory meeting for their next production, the fantastic Priscilla – Queen of the Desert, on Thursday, February 13 at 7.30pm at Greenbank High School in Southport.

This fast moving, high-energy musical extravaganza follows the fortunes of three flamboyant entertainers as they journey across the Australian Outback on their way to a very special gig in Alice Springs.

Featuring iconic pop classics such as I Will Survive, Colour my World and Go West and more glitz and glitter than a drag queen's make-up box this promises to be a journey like no other.

At the introductory meeting, the production team will outline their vision for the show, play some of the musical numbers and describe the parts for which people can audition.

It's not the sort of Aston Martin that I would go for if I won the Lottery...

LET'S get one thing straight. Aston Martin returning to F1 doesn't mean a return to 1959, when a plucky British underdog gave Ferrari a very public drubbing by taking victory at Le Mans. As of next year, Aston Martin will be back on track, taking on the Italians – but it doesn't necessarily mean any silverware heading back to Blighty.

Yet I'm still delighted that the bloke responsible – head of the Racing Point F1 team, whose cars will be re-branded with the coolest badge in motoring – has decided to go ahead with a £500m cash injection into the sports car maker, because it means Aston Martin gets a much-needed shot of adrenalin at a vital moment in its history.

MI6's car supplier of choice has come an awfully long way since 1992. That year it made just 42 cars, one of which was the Virage, a V8-engined coupé that cost more than most people's houses and yet could be outgunned at the lights by a Volkswagen Corrado VR6. Since then – and thanks largely to Ford's financial muscle – it's returned to profitability with the DB7, endurance racing with the magnificently vocal DBR-9 and the Bond films with the Vanquish and DBS. In barely two decades it's gone from near-irrelevance to pipping Apple, Bang & Olufsen and Rolex to being named the coolest brand doing business in the UK. Quite the turnaround.

But now it's about to do it all over again with the DBX, a new model that sounds about as wrong as chocolate-coated fish fingers – an Aston Martin SUV – but actually looks and sounds as though Aston's engineers have absolutely nailed it.

It's a critical car because it puts Britain's premier supercar specialist into territory that Porsche pretty much coined with the Cayenne two decades ago, the ultrafast off-roader, and which Lamborghini, Maserati, Bentley and Rolls-Royce have been vying for a slice of ever since.

It's a sector of the car market that's still doing well when the rest of the industry's been dealing with declining, and where Aston's staple diet of V8 and V12 grand tourers have been hit particularly hard.

I'm not surprised that it looks as good as it does, as it comes from the same people who brought you the DB7 and the current Vantage, but what really matters is that under the skin most of the oily bits are brand new, and the 542bhp that's unleashed every time you put your foot down comes courtesy of a Mercedes-supplied, AMG-tuned turbo V8.

It's not the sort of Aston I'd go for if I won £158,000 on the National Lottery, but the important thing is that plenty of you would. If it's a success – and it's got every right to be – it'll bankroll all those lovely Zagato-clothed special edition sports cars and roadgoing endurance racers that Aston Martin does so tremendously well.

The fact that Lawrence Stroll – who I already like because when he's not running Race Point is out playing with an enormous collection of classic cars – has stumped up £500m to keep the DBX on track is an enormous vote of confidence in a motoring national treasure.

All Aston has to do now is get on with making it! Over to you, chaps…

The DBX is a crucial car for the future of Aston Martin

Hybrid version of the Fiat 500 starts at £12,665

A NEW hybrid version of Fiat's 500 arrives here next month, with prices starting at £12,665.

The Italian city car uses a one-litre engine in conjunction with 12-volt Belt-integrated Starter Generator (BSG) electric motor and a lithium battery to produce 70bhp, with Fiat claiming it's more powerful, better for the environment and more economical than the outgoing 1.2-litre petrol engine.

There is also a new, hybrid version of the Panda on the way, which arrives in March and costs £13,855.

Korie-Butler earns Linnets shock point

Burscough 1
Longridge Town 1

BURSCOUGH earned an unlikely point against promotion-chasing Longridge Town last Tuesday (January 28), writes Neil Leatherbarrow.

The first quarter of an hour or so, was a close scrappy affair in which Longridge had most possession but did little constructively with it.

In the 14th minute Longridge went into the lead and there was a huge element of luck about it when a Ethan Kershaw strike took a double deflection and ended up in the net.

The last thing Burscough needed was to concede an early goal and more were expected to follow, but they began to hold on well.

When Burscough equalised in the 31st minute it came right out of the blue and was the Linnets first viable goal attempt of the game.

The Linnets number nine Dale Korie-Butler took the ball from defender Josh Heaton before taking it round goalkeeper Lee Dovey and finishing into the empty net to make it 1-1.

Burscough had other chances but when the match entered the latter stages they sat deep and held on for a well-deserved point.

In-form Irlam pose threat to McNally's side

BURSCOUGH will hope to get revenge on AVRO this Saturday for a 5-2 loss they suffered against the Oldham-based side earlier in the season.

The Linnets played the away fixture on a Friday night back in September and lost 5-2 but revenge could be on the cards.

Skelmersdale play Irlam at the JMO Sports Centre at Blaguegate Lane and Paul McNally's side are also in a good vein of form, winning three out of their last five games.

Skem don't have a midweek game next week, but Burscough are set to travel over to Longridge Town on Wednesday, February 12.

That game could be called off depending on how Longridge do on Saturday in the FA Vase at home to Hebburn, as a draw may see them having a replay in the north-east instead, so Burscough supporters are advised to check up before travelling to the Ribble Valley.

Meanwhile, Burscough want to find someone to film their games on a regular basis. It may suit a person looking to study media or just an enthusiastic supporter. Application can be made by emailing Steve Halliwell on stephen.halliwell966@btinternet.com

JN Sports Athletico U8s named team of week

TEAM of the week in the Skelmersdale JFL was JN Sports Athletico U8s.

A man of the match is selected by the referee from each team and from JN Athletico it was Jaxon Osman.

The referee reported that he was awarded this honour for his outstanding commitment and performance throughout the game and that overall, out of the two teams, he deserved it most.

Late gasp winner gives Burscough breathing space

Report by Neil Leatherbarrow

Charnock Richard 0
Burscough 1

A LATE goal from super-sub Joel Douglas was enough to give Burscough an impressive victory in the 'Parbold Hill Derby' with Charnock Richard.

It means the Linnets have taken seven points from their last three league matches, giving their hopes of avoiding relegation a huge boost.

The result moves them up a place in the North West Counties Premier Division to 18h as they leapfrog Hanley Town and distance themselves from bottom-placed Litherland Remyca.

Burscough had never won a so-called Parbold Hill Derby and with Charnock Richard, who started the day in the promotion places.

Burscough retained the same starting line-up that did so well on Tuesday and kicked off with a strong wind at their backs they soon carried the game to Charnock and Dale Korie-Butler brought an early save out of home goalkeeper Ben Ascroft with a header.

Before the tenth minute James Salkeld had had put an effort over the home crossbar and forced a good save out of Ascroft with a vicious shot.

Aided by good play by former Skem star Jordan Darr and Dan Regan, Charnock began to establish themselves and only a good tackle by defender Luke Gibson kept out Darr in the twelfth minute.

The hosts started to have more of the possession but their good work was floundering on a solid well organised Burscough defence in which Mitch Kinsella was doing well.

In the 19th minute Carl Grimshaw didn't connect with a cross at the far post Darr saw a volley saved by Linnets goalkeeper Dave Jones.

As half-time beckoned loud appeals for a penalty for a foul on Grimshaw were waved away by the referee but just before that down the other end Burscough's Chris Lomax had a goal bound shot by Regan.

It had been a good half; Burscough had defended well but significantly showed that they could be dangerous on the counterattack too.

Burscough did well after the restart and only some last ditch defending by the hosts kept Burscough out, Lomax had a particularly good shot blocked by Regan.

With 15 minutes to go Grimshaw went close twice but again down the other end Salkeld was only thwarted by keeper Ascroft's feet.

Both teams made changes as they sought a winner, however it was Burscough's that was to prove the most fruitful, powerful six footer Joel Douglas coming on for the hardworking Korie-Butler in the 84th minute.

Two minutes from the end of normal time Douglas was put away behind the home defence when a Charnock Richard corner was cleared, and after holding off the challenge of Aaron Griffith and charging into the penalty area his shot beat Ascroft to give Burscough the lead.

There was still work for Burscough to do if they were going to capture all three points and Jones saved well from Nathan Fairhurst before pulling off a magnificent save from Nathan Nickeas, spectacularly diverting the shot away from the top corner.

Skem come back from two goals down to beat Padiham

Padiham 2
Skelmersdale United 4

SKELMERSDALE United came back from two goals down to earn a well-deserved victory at Padiham, writes Simon Driscoll.

The result moves them seven points away from bottom-placed Litherland Remyca (20h place) and with only one team to be relegated this season it means Skem (15th place) should be safe from the drop.

The opening goal came from a quickly taken corner from the hosts when an effort from Sean Ince was saved by Ben Barnes but it was pushed against the bar and rolled over the line with the aid of the wind.

United could barely draw breath as within a minute of the opener they were 2-0 down, a sweeping cross from Luke Noble drew a diving parry from Barnes who was then helpless as Dominic Craig slotted in from close range.

United pulled a goal back when headed clearance fell to Khalil Osi-Efa, who slipped a pass to Grimshaw to make it 2-1.

The second half saw United level at 2-2 within two minutes, Alex Griffiths' angled cross forced Holmes to try and tip over the bar but his fingertip save fell kindly for Adegbenro to fire in at the far post. A succession of chances for United saw Jordan Tyrer, Preston, Osi-Efa and Adegbenro all forcing saves from Holmes from varying distances.

The United comeback was complete on 84 minutes as a long range free-kick from Osi-Efa found the head of Ben Stanton whose header into the ground looked to be bouncing nicely for Tyrer to try his luck at goal but he was denied by defender Ellis Hancox who connected and slotted past Holmes into his own net for 3-2.

United made it 4-2 lead in the 90th minute with a stunning effort. A curled clearance from Holmes fell to Carey on the touchline and he let fly from almost 40 yards with the ball sailing over the backpedaling Holmes into the net to the joy of the travelling fans.

The final whistle minutes later was greeted by similar joy from the United contingent as they wrapped up a double over the Storks and registered a first away win since the 5-0 triumph at Winsford in late November.
